gr. These days there are such a lot of different opinions about people's interest in arts. Some claims that people appeal to learn more about arts and culture. Actually, in a modern world everyone can choose something interesting, find inspiration in the Arts. But some people are worried about the future of the culture. Furthermore, they are sure that the Arts is becoming less popular.

sp. Due to researchers who have got statistics with visits to some museums and galleries in England I collected information which can show if the problem is substantial. Firstly, British Museum and National Gallery show a really good rate. They have almost multiply the number of visitor in two for four years. The same situation happened to Tate Gallery which had become much more popular since 2013. I can surely say that British people and tourists respectively support British culture. Secondly, Natural History Museum is slowly brings his popularity back. It was visited by a number of people which is little bigger than two years ago but almost two millions less than four years ago. Thirdly, Science Museum is becoming less popular each year.

gr. Taking into account all the statistics, I consider that the UK should make science more available for ordinary people. Some project competitions and science events can make people visit Science Museum and Natural Museum more often.

lex. To (draw on) a conclusion, I would like to say that culture has a big future. We just need to develop it together.
